Schools receive additional credit for exceptional graduation and college/career readiness outcomes of students with disabilities, English Language Learners, and students who enter high school at a low performance level.

The NYC School Progress Report informs families about the school's strengths and weaknesses, emphasizing how far students have come in the past year. Progress Report grades are made up of several sections: student progress, student performance, and school environment. In each section, your school's results are compared to the results of other schools serving similar students and to all schools citywide. Frequently Asked Questions

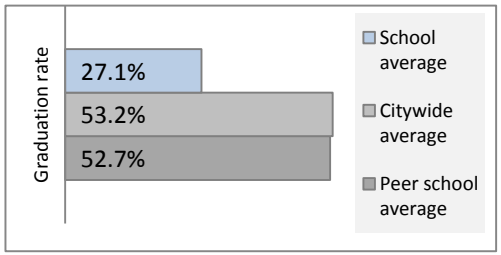
What is the graduation rate of this school?



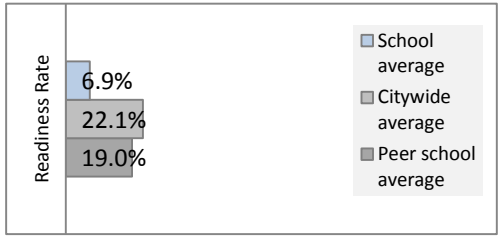
Graduation Rate

In 2013, 28Q338's six year graduation rate was 27.1%. This was lower than the average overall graduation rate of transfer High schools. Compared to other transfer high schools in the city serving students with similar characteristics, 28Q338's graduation rate was statistically lower.

In recent years, New York State adopted the Common Core Learning Standards, raising the bar for all students and setting the expectation that students will graduate ready for college and career. To learn more about the Common Core standards, visit our Common Core Library online at:

http://schools.nyc.gov/Academics/CommonCoreLibrary/ForFamilies/default.htm

How well did this school prepare its students for college?



To answer this question, we looked at the percentage of students in the graduating cohort who graduated and met the Regents exam, SAT and/or course standards for passing out of remedial coursework at CUNY by August 2013, or graduated early and enrolled in college by June 2013.

Comprehensive Readiness Rate

Students from 28Q338 were less prepared for college compared to other students in the city. Compared to students from high schools serving similar populations, the students from 28Q338 were less prepared.

To learn more about the Comprehensive Readiness Rate and how it is calculated, visit the Progress Report website and download the Progress Report Educator's Guide at:
