THE CLASS OF 2007: FOUR-YEAR LONGITUDINAL GRADUATION AND DROPOUT REPORT AND 2006-2007 EVENT DROPOUT RATES

KEY FINDINGS

Sixty-two percent (62.0 percent) of students in the Class of 2007 (entering 9th graders in 2003) graduated from high school within four years after their entry into the 9th grade. Nearly a quarter (24.2 percent) of the Class of 2007 remained enrolled in high school for a fifth year while less than one-sixth (13.8 percent) of the class dropped out at the end of the four years. These statistics have been validated by an independent audit.

The 2007 graduation rate is higher than the previous three classes, 2006 (59.7 percent), 2005 (58.2 percent), and 2004 (54.3 percent). Further, this is the highest on-time graduation rate since the Department of Education (DOE) began reporting these statistics over 20 years ago.

The combined four-year graduation and still-enrolled rates for the Class of 2007 (86.2 percent) represents a 0.9 percentage point increase over the Class of 2006 (85.3 percent). In addition, the Class of 2007 dropout rate decreased by 0.8 percentage point compared with the Class of 2006, reflecting a consistent decrease in the dropout rate that began with the Class of 2004. This decrease may be in part attributable to a change in DOE policy requiring exit interviews with potential dropouts.

Beginning with the Class of 2005 (entering 9th graders in 2001), high school seniors may be awarded two levels of Regents diplomas. The combined percentage of graduates awarded Advanced Regents Diplomas (24.3 percent) and Regents Diplomas (41.0 percent) was 65.3 percent for the Class of 2007, which is a 2.3 percentage point increase over the Class of 2006 (63.0 percent) and a 4.6 percentage point increase over the Class of 2005 (60.7 percent). For more information on the changes in diploma requirements for a New York State high school diploma, see Appendix A.

BACKGROUND

This report presents the progress toward school completion of students who entered the ninth grade in Fall 2003 and were scheduled to graduate on time in Spring 2007 after four years of high school. The Class of 2007 is the twenty-second class for which New York City Department of Education has conducted a four-year longitudinal study. The report presents outcomes for the class as a whole, as well as outcomes for specific groups of students categorized by gender, English language status, race/ethnicity, and immigrant status. Changes in NY State diploma requirements appear in Appendix A. School-Level analyses for the Class of 2007 appear in Appendix B. Diploma types by school are presented in Appendix C. Diploma types by race/ethnicity are presented by school in Appendix D. To follow trends across classes, comparisons of four-year outcome data for the Classes of 2005, 2006, and 2007 are presented in Appendix E. Event dropout rates are in Appendix F.

METHODOLOGY

Longitudinal Cohorts

The study follows two student cohorts. One is comprised of students in general education classes, including students receiving special education services in less restrictive settings. The other is comprised of students in self-contained special education classes in either regular high schools or in District 75, the citywide special education district which consists of schools that primarily serve students with severe disabling conditions.

Students were assigned to the Class of 2007 based on the year in which they entered Grades 9 through 12. More than nine in ten (90.5 percent) of the students in the Class of 2007 joined the cohort as entering ninth-graders during the 2003-2004 school year, and most had been in the New York City public schools in lower grades. Some entered our school system during Grade 9. The remainder transferred into the New York City public schools during high school and became part of the cohort as tenth graders in 2004-05, as eleventh graders in 2005-06, or as twelfth graders in 2006-2007. All of these students would have completed the traditional four-year high school sequence by Spring or Summer 2007. Students who were discharged to other school systems or who moved out of New York City were omitted from the cohort.

Because self-contained special education classes are ungraded, students were assigned to a separate cohort based on their age and enrollment in special education programs. Students were included in this cohort if they turn 14 years old during the year 2003 and were in a self-contained special education class in a Community School District school, high school, or a citywide special education program (District 75). Students were not added to this cohort after the initial year because of the ungraded nature of their classes.

This report primarily focuses on the number and percent of students graduating on time and those still enrolled for a fifth year of high school. Students dropping out of New York City public schools are also reported. Related to this focus is the task of determining the status of all of the students in the class at the time the students were expected to graduate. Each student in the study group is determined to be in one of four possible categories based on his or her status at the end of the school year.

Graduates are students who have received a high school diploma, GED, or special education certificate by June or August 2007. Still-enrolled students were still on register and scheduled to continue into a fifth year of high school in Fall 2007. Dropouts are students who have left the school system without enrolling in another education program that leads either to a high school diploma or prepares the student for the Test of General Educational Development leading to a general equivalency diploma (GED). Discharges are students who left the school system primarily to enroll in another educational program or setting. Students who aged out of the school system, i.e., reached the age of 21, and students who died prior to completing high school, are also counted in this category.

Event Dropout Rate

In addition to the Class of 2007 longitudinal data, this report also presents event dropout rates. The event dropout rate represents the number and percentage of students who dropped out of high school during the 2006-2007 school year, regardless of when they entered the school system. Students are counted as dropouts if they left school by the end of the 2006-2007 school year without re-enrolling in another educational setting leading to a high school diploma or GED. Only students who were first-time dropouts during the 2006-2007 school year are counted in the Event Dropout rate for this time period.

FINDINGS

Characteristics of the Class of 2007

During the dates covered by the study (2003-2004 through 2006-2007) school years), the New York City public schools served 88,963 students in the cohort. This included the base population of 80,482 students who entered 9th grade in 2003-2004 and 8,481 students admitted to the class in subsequent years (see Table 1).

Over the four-year period, 18,524 (20.8 percent) were discharged prior to the expected graduation date of summer 2007. Almost all of these students left New York City and entered another school system. After adding admissions in Grades 10, 11, and 12 and removing students who transferred to other school systems, there were 70,439 students in the Class of 2007.

The 70,439 students in the Class of 2007 had the following characteristics:

- The Class of 2007 contained a slightly higher proportion of females than males (51.1 percent females and 48.9 percent males).
- The ethnic composition of the cohort was 34.3 percent Black, 36.4 percent Hispanic, 14.3 percent White, and 14.8 percent Asian. Less than one percent (0.3 percent) of the students were American Indian/Alaskan Natives. These percentages were nearly the same as those for the Class of 2006.
- Of the 70,439 students, 10.8 percent (7,584 students) were still English Language Learners (ELLs), and entitled to bilingual or English as a Second Language (ESL) services at the end of high school (see Figure 5). An additional 26.8 percent (18,849 students) were former ELLs, students who were at one time ELLs but who scored above the 40th percentile on the Language Assessment Battery (LAB), or in recent years scored below the cut-off score on the revised Language Assessment Battery (LAB-R), and who tested out on the New York State Education Department's new exit exam, the New York State English as a Second Language Achievement Test (NYSESLAT), before they left high school. The Class of 2007 had virtually the same percentage of ELLs at the end of four years of high school compared to the Class of 2006 (10.3 percent).

 This is the student cohort used for calculating outcomes.

Note: Percentages may not add up to 100% due to rounding.

- More than 16 percent of the students in the 2007 cohort were recent immigrants to the United States (11,849), a 0.7 percentage point decrease from the previous class (17.5 percent). These students came from more than 180 different countries. Of these recent immigrants, 34.1 percent (4,042 students) entered the country in either Grade 7 or Grade 8. The remainder, 65.9 percent (7,807 students), entered the country sometime during or after Grade 9. The percentage of immigrants in the Class of 2007 who entered the New York City public school system at the beginning of high school is 12.9 percentage points higher than that of the Class of 2006 (53.0 percent).

General Outcomes for the Class of 2007

The graduation rate for the Class of 2007 increased 2.3 percentage points compared to the Class of 2006. The dropout rate (13.8 percent) for the Class of 2007 decreased by .8 of a percentage point compared with that of the Class of 2006 (14.6 percent). Of the remaining students, 24.2 percent were still enrolled for a fifth year. The following are the specific outcomes for the Class of 2007 (see Figure 1):

- The four-year graduation rate for the Class of 2007 was 62.0 percent. This is 2.3 percentage points higher than for the Class of 2006 (59.7 percent) and the highest on-time graduation rate since longitudinal analyses were instituted over 20 years ago. Likewise, 24.2 percent remained enrolled in high school for a fifth year while less than one-sixth (13.8 percent) of the class dropped out at the end of four years. The 2007 graduation rate is higher than the previous three classes: 2006 (59.7 percent), 2005 (58.2 percent), and 2004 (54.3 percent) (see Table 7).
- The combined four-year graduation and still-enrolled rates of the Class of 2007 (86.2 percent) is slightly higher than both the Classes of 2006 (85.3 percent) and 2005 (85.2 percent), and 2.5 percentage points higher than the Class of 2004 (83.7 percent).
- The four-year dropout rate for the Class of 2007 was 13.8 percent, 0.8 of a percentage point lower than the Class of 2006 (14.6 percent). This is the lowest dropout rate since the Department of Education began reporting these statistics over 20 years ago. This reduction is attributable, in part, to a change in policy: specifically: in 2003-2004, The DOE changed its policy and required exit interviews for some “over age 17” dropouts. The policy required that students who choose to leave school before they graduate with a diploma be provided with a planning interview with a guidance counselor, assistant principal or principal. The purpose of the planning interview is to (1) discuss with the student and parent the educational options that are available to the student, (2) encourage the student to remain in school, and, (3) if he/she still chooses to leave, to ensure that the student is apprised of his/her right to return to school until the age of 21.

Four-Year Outcomes for the Class of 2007
(N = 70,439)

* A Local Diploma is achieved with a score of 55-64 on five Regents, and earning the appropriate credits.

 Beginning with the Class of 2005, a Regents Diploma is achieved with a score of 65 or above on five Regents (English, Math, Global History & Geography, Science, and U.S. History & Government), and earning the appropriate credits. Previously, a Regents Diploma required passing eight Regents with a score of 65 or above, and earning the appropriate credits.

 Beginning with the Class of 2005, an Advanced Regents Diploma is achieved with a score of 65 or above on eight Regents, and earning the appropriate credits.

* The Class of 2007 dropout statistics reflect students who dropped out by June 30th of their fourth year. The reduction in dropout rates is due, in part, to recent DOE policy requiring planning interviews for students above compulsory school age before schools are permitted to discharge them to dropout status. The interview process may delay many students from dropping out until their fifth, sixth, or seventh years, and those students will be captured when the DOE calculates final seven-year statistics for the Class of 2007; however, many students may remain enrolled in high school and graduate.

Note: Percentages may not add up to 100% due to rounding.

- Table 2 presents the status of the Class of 2007 for each of the four years of the study. It indicates that of the 9,753 students who dropped out, 1,228 did so after one (354) or two (1,195) years in high school, 2,868 did so after three years in high school, and 5,336 did so after four years.
- Table 3 presents the types of diplomas earned by the Class of 2007 graduates and the percentages of students receiving them. For the Class of 2007, the percentage of graduates awarded either Advanced Regents Diplomas (24.3 percent) or Regents Diplomas (41.0 percent) was 65.3 percent; this is 2.3 percentage points more than the Class of 2006 (63.0 percent). Beginning in 2005, students received either (1) an Advanced Regents Diploma, earning the appropriate number of credits and scoring at least 65 on eight Regents examinations; or, (2) a Regents Diploma by earning the appropriate number of credit credits and scoring at least 65 on the five required Regents examinations in English, Mathematics, U.S. History and Government, Global History and Geography, and Science; or, (3) a Local Diploma by earning the appropriate number of credit and scoring between a 55-64 on the five required Regents examinations. Prior to the class of 2005, students had to pass eight Regents examinations to receive a Regents Diploma, while Local Diploma requirements have remained the same.
- Table 4 presents the types of diplomas earned by the Classes of 2007, 2006 and 2005, and compares diplomas earned by graduates and diplomas earned if one examines all students in the cohort. For the Class of 2007, 65.3 percent of graduates received either Advanced Regents or Regents diplomas. Although 41.0 percent of graduates earned a Regents Diploma, only 25.4 percent of the cohort as a whole graduated with a Regents Diploma at the end of four years; likewise, in 2006, 23.1 percent of graduates earned an Advanced Regents Diploma (13.8 percent of the cohort).
- Table 5 summarizes the types of diplomas earned by students by race/ethnicity in the Class of 2007. As indicated in this table, there is a wide disparity in the percentage of students earning Regents Diplomas by race/ethnicity with far higher percentages of White and Asian students receiving Advanced Regents or Regents Diplomas than Native American, Black or Hispanic students.

Outcomes by Student Groups

Outcomes by Gender

- A substantially higher percentage of females (66.9 percent) than males (56.8 percent) graduated on time (see Figure 2). The dropout rate of males was 4.0 percentage points higher than that of females (15.9 percent compared to 11.9 percent). Also, a higher percentage of males (27.3 percent) were still enrolled and entering a fifth year of high school compared to females (21.2 percent). These findings are similar to those reported for the Class of 2006.

Outcomes by Age for Grade on Entry into High School

- Many students who entered the cohort in Grade 9 were already over age for grade. This may be due to previous retention in our schools or because the students were over age when they entered the New York City public schools. Figure 3 indicates the percentage of students in each category who were either over age or the expected age for grade when they entered high school. As the results show, 81.9 percent of the students who graduated in four years were the expected age for grade when they entered Grade 9. In contrast, 35.1 percent of the students who became dropouts were the expected age when they entered Grade 9, and 64.9 percent were already over age for the grade. The percentages for the still-enrolled students are more similar to those for the graduates than the dropouts.

Outcomes by Race/Ethnicity

- Figure 4 reports the four-year school-completion outcomes by race/ethnicity. As observed for earlier cohorts, White and Asian students had the highest four-year graduation rates (79.1 percent and 77.0 percent, respectively) and the lowest dropout rates (8.6 percent and 8.1 percent, respectively). Conversely, the graduation rate for Black students was 57.5 percent with a dropout rate of 13.9 percent. Hispanic students had a four-year graduation rate of 53.4 percent and a dropout rate of 18.2 percent. For American Indians/Alaskan Native students, the graduation rate was 51.9 percent and the dropout rate was 17.1 percent. Still-enrolled rates were 12.3, 14.9, 28.6, 28.4, and 30.9 percent for White, Asian, Black, Hispanic, and American Indians/Alaskan Native students, respectively. Table 6 provides comparisons by race/ethnicity for the Classes of 2003 through 2007.
- For the Class of 2007, all groups continued to experience an increase in graduation rates except for American Indian/Alaskan Native students : Hispanic students (+2.6 percentage points), White students (+2.2 percentage points); Asian students (+2.5 percentage points); and Black students (+2.9 percentage points). American Indian/Alaskan Natives sustained the same graduation rate from the previous year. (Note: because there are few American Indian/Alaskan Native students system-wide, this group experiences greater year-to-year fluctuations in graduation, enrollment, and dropout rates than other groups.)

- The dropout rate continued to decrease slightly for all groups. Specifically, the percentage-point decrease in student dropout rates by group was: White (-0.7 of a percentage point); Asian (-0.7 of a percentage point); Black (-1.1 of a percentage point); Hispanic (-.9 of a percentage point); and American Indian/Alaskan Native students (-0.4 of a percentage point).
- Finally, the percentage of students still enrolled for a fifth year of high school decreased for all groups in 2007 (24.2 percent) compared with 2006 (25.6 percent).

Outcomes for English Language Learners

- As reported earlier, 7,584 (10.7 percent) of the students in the Class of 2007 were still ELLs at the end of four years of high school, and 18,849 (26.7 percent) were former ELLs. (Former ELLs are students who tested out of a bilingual or free-standing English as a Second Language program.) These students spent at least part of their high school careers in bilingual or free-standing English as a Second Language programs.
- Overall, the school completion outcomes of current ELLs is less than that of non-ELL students (see Figure 5). Current ELLs had lower four-year graduation rates than either former ELLs or English Proficient students. ELLs were also still enrolled at a much higher rate than former ELLs or English Proficient students. The gap in school completion outcomes between ELLs and the other groups may be reduced when the final statistics for the Class of 2007 are reported in the three-year follow-up study. This reduction in disparity has been observed consistently in three-year follow-up studies, including that for the Class of 2004 (published in a separate report).

Outcomes for Recent Immigrants

- In the Class of 2007, 16.8 percent (or 11,849 students) were identified as recent immigrants. Students who are recent immigrants can be divided into two groups. The first group, which represents 34.1 percent of recent immigrants, is comprised of students who first entered New York City public middle schools in Grades 7 or 8. The second group, representing 65.8 percent of recent immigrants, entered the Class of 2007 in Grade 9 or after. It is important to note that although many immigrants are ELLs, ELLs may be either immigrants or non-immigrants.
- The outcomes for the students in the Class of 2007 by immigrant status are reported in Figure 6. As with the Class of 2006, the results for the Class of 2007 are somewhat different from previous classes for the group labeled “Immigrants on Entry into Class of 2007.” As a group, immigrants come to our schools relatively prepared to succeed in high school. For the Class of 2007, students who were recent immigrants to our schools in grades 7 and 8 had a dropout rate of 12.4 percent, lower than the 13.8 percent dropout rate for all students citywide. The graduation rate for students who immigrated in Grades 7 and 8 (61.5 percent) was higher than that of students who were immigrants when they entered the Class of 2007 in grades 9-12 (53.5 percent), and almost the same as that of non-immigrant students (63.1 percent).

Since the Class of 2004, there has been an overall 11.3 percent increase in the percentage of students who graduated and were immigrants when they entered the Class of 2007 (specifically, Class of 2004, 42.2 percent; Class of 2005, 50.3 percent; Class of 2006, 50.5 percent; Class of 2007, 53.5 percent). Likewise, there has been a corresponding decrease of 11.2 percentage points in the number of students who were still-enrolled and were immigrants when they entered the Class of 2007. The percentage of students who dropped out of school decreased slightly from 18.3 percent in 2006, to 17.5 percent in 2007.

Similar to the trend observed among all “still-enrolled” students in the Class of 2007, a sizable number of new immigrants who entered NYC school in Grade 9 may be on track to obtain a diploma at the end of their fifth year of high school.

Outcomes by High School Type

The high schools that students attend can be categorized into five basic types. The Specialized High Schools require students to pass special entrance examinations. The Career and Technical Education Schools offer programs that prepare students for jobs in a vocational or technical area, as well as for college. The zoned Academic-Comprehensive High Schools, many of which have special programs with various admission requirements, are required to accept all who live in the school’s zone and wish to attend.

Transfer Alternative High Schools accept students as transfers from other high schools; these schools provide smaller settings that emphasize academic and personal support. Retrieval/GED programs offer smaller settings designed for students facing special issues, many of which place them at risk of dropping out such as substance abuse and criminal activity. These programs provide individualized academic and personal assistance to their students so they can return to their high schools or prepare for the GED.

- As Figure 7 indicates, there was wide variation in the four-year outcomes for students by school type. For the Class of 2007, Specialized High Schools had the highest on-time graduation rate (97.6 percent) and lowest dropout rate (0.3 percent). Academic and CTE high schools had graduation rates (63.1 percent and 66.4 percent, respectively), which were slightly higher than the citywide rate of 62.0 percent. Transfer Alternative high schools had the highest still-enrolled rate (53.4 percent). Retrieval/GED programs had the highest dropout rate (60.2%).

Outcomes for Special Education Students

Students who were 14 years old during 2003 and were enrolled in a citywide special education school in District 75 or self-contained class in a middle school or high school are counted in a separate cohort. Due to the different nature of the programs, results for this cohort are reported. After excluding 605 students in citywide special education programs who were discharged to other school systems, 1,578 students were identified as members of that group. After excluding 1,359 students in high school self-contained classes who were discharged to other school systems, 4,675 students were identified as members of that group. The results for the separate cohort of students in special education for the cohort of 2007, reported in Figure 8, indicate the following:

- Nearly three percent (2.7 percent) of the District 75 cohort graduated in four years in the Class of 2007, reflecting a slight increase in the four-year graduation outcomes of students in this cohort (1.9 percent of District 75 students graduated in 2006, 2.0 percent in 2005 and less than two percent in 2004). The four-year graduation rate for special education students in self-contained classes, however, was 10.6 percent for the Class of 2007, a decrease from 2006 when it was 12.8 percent.
- For students in District 75 citywide programs, the Class of 2007 dropout rate was 19.6 percent, and the dropout rate for special education students in self-contained classes was 16.6 percent, 2.3 percentage points lower than the Class of 2006 (18.9 percent).
- Nearly three-fourths (72.8 percent) of the high school special education students in self-contained classrooms and four-fifths (77.8 percent) of the students in District 75 citywide programs were identified as still enrolled in school as of June 30, 2007. These percentages are higher than the comparable percentage of students still enrolled in the Class of 2006 (68.4 percent and 78.1 percent, respectively). However, that such large percentages of special education students are still enrolled after four years is not surprising. Many special education students are in programs designed to provide services until students are 21 years old. At that time, many of these students are expected to participate in adult programs for former special education students.

DROPOUT RATES

Dropout rates have also been tracked longitudinally for the past several years. As Table 7 shows, the dropout rate for the Class of 2007 (13.8 percent) decreased by 0.8 of a percentage point compared to the Class of 2006 (14.6 percent), and more than 5 percentage points over five years compared to the Classes of 2004 (16.3 percent), 2003 (20.3 percent), 2002 (20.3 percent) and 2001 (20.4 percent). It is the lowest four-year dropout rate since 1986, and is due, in part, to a change in DOE policy requiring planning interviews before students may be discharged as dropouts. Some of these students may decide to remain in school as a result of the planning interviews.

Event Dropout Rates

The event dropout rate represents the number of students who dropped out of high school for the first time during the 2006-07 school year, regardless of when they entered the system. Students are counted as dropouts if they left school by the end of the 2006-07 school year without re-enrolling in another educational setting leading to a high school diploma or GED. Only students who were first-time dropouts during the 2006-07 school year are counted in this analysis. The counts include all students in all schools, including students in self-contained special education classes. Individual school event dropout rates as well as rates by District appear in Appendix F.

As noted in Table 8, the event dropout rate for 2006-2007 (6.0 percentage points) declined nearly one percentage point when compared to the 2005-2006 event dropout rate of 6.9 percentage points. The 2006-2007 event dropout rate is the lowest rate since 2003-2004 when DOE changed its policy and began requiring exit interviews for some “over 17” dropouts.

2007^a	13.8	62.0	24.2	70,439

Note: Students who were discharged from the school system are not in the above results.

a Beginning with the Class of 2004, dropout statistics reflect students who dropped out by June 30th of their fourth year. The reduction in dropout rates is, in part, due to a recent DOE policy requiring planning interviews for students above compulsory school age before schools are permitted to discharge them to dropout status. The interview process may delay many students from dropping out until their fifth, sixth, or seventh years, and those students will be captured when the DOE calculates final seven-year statistics for the Class of 2006; however, many students may remain enrolled in high school and graduate.

Note: Percentages may not add up to 100% due to rounding.

2000-2001	297,932	29,868	7.0
1999-2000	304,589	20,416	6.7

^a The DOE changed its policy and required exit interviews for some "over 17" dropouts. This policy change reduced our dropout rate in this year and in subsequent years.

^b The increase in event dropout rates for 2002-2003 reflects differences in reporting procedures required by the New York State Education Department due to changes in decision rules for counting dropouts and for reflecting students' status as of June 30th of the reporting year rather than as of the fall the following year. For the purposes of comparison, dropout rates for 2001-2002 were recalculated using the same methodology as in 2002-2003.

APPENDIX F

2006-2007 EVENT DROPOUT RATES

The event dropout rate represents the number of students who dropped out of high school during the 2006-2007 school year, regardless of when they entered the school system. Students are counted as dropouts if they left school by the end of the 2006-2007 school year without re-enrolling in another educational setting leading to a high school diploma or a GED. Only students who were first-time dropouts during the 2006-2007 school year are counted. The counts include all students in the schools, including students in self-contained special education classes. The event dropout rate for 2006-2007 reflects differences in reporting procedures required by the New York State Education Department because of changes in decision rules for counting dropouts and for reflecting students' status as of June 30th of the reporting year rather than as of the fall of the following year.
