E-mail safety tips

- 1 Make sure you log out of your email when using public computers
- 2 Keep your password and email address in a safe place. Never give out your password.
- 3 Most email accounts receive spam. Spam is an unsolicited email from a person or company. You should treat spam like junk mail and use common sense. Spam emails may have: a link to fill out personal contact or financial information; a request for money; notice that you have won a prize; offensive content an attachment that may contain a computer virus.
- 4 If you would like to learn more about using email many libraries in NYC offer free classes.
