A MESSAGE

Dear Students,

We are delighted to have had the opportunity to showcase your artwork through the Respect for All Anti-Bullying Poster Contest. Once again, congratulations on having your artwork selected from so many submissions. The message in your artwork truly inspires dialogue and creativity to prevent bullying in schools, as evidenced in discussions during the poster contest celebration on December 10.

Thank you again for lending your talents to support the Respect for All campaign!

Respect:

There are multiple ways to show respect. These are a few of the ways:

- *Saying please and thank you to others
- *Holding doors for people
- *Not being rude to adults and older family members
- *Helping out the elderly
- *Helping homeless people

What to do to build respect in schools & communities:

There are also many ways to have respect in your school and community. One way is to recycle. It helps keep your living environment safe, healthy, and clean. Another way to show respect in school is to listen to your teachers, and do your homework. This shows that you care about your grades and will impress the teacher.

Empathy:

Empathy. This word means to understand and share the feelings of another. Everyone should have empathy for one another because if someone is sad you should help and not bring them down more

BULLYING

Know the difference!

During bullying there are many different types of people. The "Bully", "Ally", "Bystander" and the "Victim". Now you may wonder "what is the difference between the Ally and a Bystander?" And that will soon be clear. An Ally is the person who is assisting the bully or helping them bully another person, like a co-bully if you will. On the other hand, a Bystander is the person or persons that just sit and watches all of the action happen, kind of like the audience to a play. They are both bad to be because they both just make the problem worse instead of alerting an adult which is the right thing to do!

Caring:

To create a caring community, you need to make sure everyone knows how not to be a bully. Bullies bring other people down, physically, mentally and emotionally for their own amusement. No one should be a bully! If you want a caring and safe environment, everyone should know how wrong it is to bully someone and the. No one would do it. Bullying can lead to suicide, depression, and other terrible things. So to create a safe environment you need to stop bullying and speak up.

At the bottom of the page, there is a column of very small, faint text, likely bleed-through from the reverse side of the paper. The text is mostly illegible due to its size and fading, but it appears to be organized into several paragraphs or sections.
