

PBS LearningMedia Digital Integrator Program

PBS LearningMedia is an innovative, free digital media service that harnesses the power of public media to support curriculum-based teaching and learning from preK-12. WNET (Channel 13) is the flagship public media station of the New York City tri-state area and the most-watched public television channel in the nation. Recognizing the vast potential for our broadcast programming to become powerful learning resources, WNET's Education Department creates rich media experiences that engage students and teachers in exploring curriculum concepts. These resources, along with thousands of other curriculum and professional development resources, are available at no cost to educators through PBS LearningMedia (www.pbslearningmedia.org).

Discover, use, and share best practices for using digital media (video, audio, images, and interactives) in the classroom through participation in the PBS LearningMedia Digital Integrator Program. Digital Integrators have significant experience using digital media to enrich and enhance learning with students, and support teachers in the effective integration of digital media into teaching.

The goal of the program is to create a community of New York City educators savvy in the use of digital media who offer their ed tech insights to each other, and to classroom teachers across the city and beyond. We are recruiting a select number of New York City teachers to participate in this exclusive community we call "PBS LearningMedia Digital Integrators" (PBS LM-DI).
