School Overview

Our school offers students an intellectually challenging curriculum focused on Latin American and Caribbean studies, college and career preparation, and community activism. Our classes emphasize college-level writing and analytical skills, as well as cultural awareness and celebration, which are integrated into the entire curriculum. We partner with Sarah Lawrence College to provide writing workshops. Our school was co-founded by Cypress Hills Local Development Corporation (CHLDC), a community-based organization. CHLDC provides opportunities for all students to be involved in the community and complete community service projects focused on critically analyzing impacting community issues.
