School Overview

The Urban Assembly Maker Academy (UA Maker) prepares students for college and careers by focusing on industries that creatively use technology to solve problems. Students will use technology every day in a highly personalized environment that engages professionals at the top of their fields to guide project-based learning. Our school features new kinds of classroom experiences that recreate what the workplace looks and feels like for tech professionals. We support and empower students to become the next generation of designers and inventors. In challenge-based courses, students tackle real world problems and develop the skills, tools, and habits of inquiry to be tomorrow's "makers," contributing to the internationally booming "Maker Movement."
