FROM: Michael Tragale, Chief Financial Officer

SUBJECT: Academic and Personal Behaviors Pilot

This memorandum outlines the allocations supporting the Academic and Personal Behaviors Pilot administered by the Office of Postsecondary Readiness.

The DOE has developed indicators of college and career readiness, drawing from national models, research and tools, which define the qualities and achievements that students need to master in order to be ready to enroll, remain, and succeed in college and career. The Academic and Personal Behaviors Pilot (APB) is a program designed to support teachers integrate these behaviors into curriculum, instruction, and school culture.

Schools participating in the pilot are provided: (1) professional development and assessments; (2) opportunities for collaborative school-team learning and inquiry; and (3) support for purchasing additional resources. Pilot activities are aligned with successful implementation of the citywide instructional expectations and the Common Core.

The APB pilot runs from December 2012 through June 2013.

This allocation is for Per Diem, the cost of classroom coverage for teachers to be out of the school building to attend the pilot kick-off and wrap up sessions. It also covers Per Session hours for teacher time spent with coaches to plan and evaluate instructional practices. They will be responsible for trying new practices, and documenting their practices.

Each school is provided with per session for two teachers, up to twenty hours per teacher. In addition, these funds include 4 per diem days to cover the cost of 2 teachers each attending the Kick-off and the wrap up event outside of the school building.

Allocations have been placed in the TL Academic Behaviors Pilot, allocation category.
